HOME OF THE PALMETTO CLUB

The elements did not smile propitiously upon the ladies of the Palmetto Club for their opening meeting of the season 1908-9. An uncomfortably strong wind, attended by sheets of rain at intervals, demanded that the ladies get out their wraps, and otherwise fortify themselves against adverse weather conditions.

Once gathered in their club room, no dampening of their ardor was observable. The president, Mrs. Howard Y. Sullivan, opened the meeting in a cherry and animated style, which was contagious, and soon all were at their best. The president's opening address was timely, and well received.

Miss Jessie Brown came next with a piano solo, which enlivened the meeting. The president next introduced Miss Amelia Potter, who served the club as its third president. Miss Potter, having attended the Boston meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at its recent meeting, gave a most interesting paper touching the proceedings of the said meeting. The paper was replete with interesting references to the problems discussed at the Boston gathering, and to hear her paper was the next best thing to having attended in person the meeting of the general federation.

A well prepared paper along the lines of Miss Potter's paper by Mrs. Weaver, who is absent this winter, was next read. Its reading commanded wraps, attention, and elicited praise for its merits. Miss Brown favored the club with a second piano solo.

Mrs. Geo. F. Smith followed with a paper giving notes on the State meeting of the Federation of Woman's Clubs. This, like the preceding papers, was a clever production and elicited favorable encomiums.

Mrs. C. H. Raynor, ex-president of club, spoke extemporaneously, paying tribute to the high merit of the papers read, declaring that one rarely has the privilege of listening to so many papers of such exceptional ability.

The officers of the club were the hostesses of the day and after the feast of intellectual pabulum the physical was looked after, tea and wafers being served.

The officers of the club, hostesses for the occasion, were: Mrs. DeCantillon Stillman, President; Mrs. Romaine Miller Downing, 1st Vice President; Mrs. Elizabeth Wilder Huston, 2nd Vice President; Mrs. Mayme Smalles Smith, Recording Secretary; Mrs. Agnes M. Seaman, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. Dora Dayton, Financial Secretary; Mrs. Ida A. Peck, Treasurer; Miss Bessie E. Rowe, Auditor.

The social committee were: Mesdames Louise MacLaren, C. B. D. Cling, Gertrude W. Each, Susie M. Merrill, and Harriett W. Blodgett.

During the summer the Palmetto Club rooms have been nicely decorated and worked over. They were very fresh and beautifully attractive. The members anticipate a season of meetings of both interest and profit.

IN HONOR OF DEAD PRESIDENT.

A Memorial Address in Honor of Grover Cleveland, Praising His Sterling Character.

PAUL NORTON MAKES ADDRESS.

(By United Press.) NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—A memorial address in honor of the late President Grover Cleveland today prefaced the annual meeting of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents. Phoenix-like the organization has arisen from a chaotic state, left so by the searching insurance investigations. Paul Norton, of the Equitable Life Insurance Co., delivered the principal address.

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Baker, of Lakeside, Ohio, and Mrs. E. S. Peck, of Hemstead, Long Island, arrived in the city Thursday, and are guests of The Glenn, on North Beach street.

EVIDENCE WAS LACKING.

Daytona Beach Minister Arrested on Alleged Charge of Concealing Stolen Goods.

BOTTOM FELL OUT OF CASE.

Thursday Rev. C. E. Parsons, pastor of the M. E. church at Daytona Beach, was arrested on the alleged charge of concealing stolen property, and a preliminary hearing was held before Justice Karn, at Port Orange, Thursday afternoon. F. W. Pope, of Jacksonville, and F. W. Pope, Jr., of this city, assisted with the prosecution, while Landis & Fish, of Deland, represented Mr. Parsons. There was no evidence incriminating the reverend gentleman, and he was discharged.

Mr. Parsons bought a house in the northern part of Seabreeze some time ago, the house being vacant. It seems from what can be learned, that a crowd of young pilfers have been making this house headquarters. It is presumed that the gang has been doing all the amateur burglary work that has been transpiring on the peninsula the past summer. A hunting coat belonging to a man at Port Orange was found in the house, and some overzealous person swore out a warrant for Mr. Parsons. Friends of Mr. Parsons are very indignant that a charge of this kind should be brought against him, as he bears an untarnished reputation at Marion, Ind., where he lived before going to Daytona Beach.

SHERRIFF WILL SELL DRY GOODS.

Stock of Moore Brothers Company Goes to Highest Bidder on January 4, 1909.

CORPORATION HEAVILY INVOLVED.

In tomorrow's Gazette-News Sheriff Turner will advertise for sale the entire stock of goods of the Moore Brothers Company, a corporation which has been doing business in Daytona for some time. The stock consists of dry goods, and notions. The fixtures and furniture too will be advertised. The judgments against the corporation amount to about $3,500 but the total liabilities of the corporation are estimated at $7,000. While the sheriff's sale is advertised for January 4, it is doubtful whether the sale will take place, as proceedings will probably be taken by the unsecured creditors to throw the business into bankruptcy.

DAYTONA IS TO HAVE MACHINE MANUFACTORY.

A. C. Leroy, of Rochester, N. Y., Is Seeking Location To Build Engines and Machinery.

With the purpose of establishing a plant in the city for the construction of engines and machinery, A. C. Leroy of Rochester, N. Y., is here, casting about for a suitable location. Mr. Leroy came in Wednesday, having been some time over on the west coast where things move rather more leisurely than they do over this way. Coming from a live wide-awake city like Rochester it is needless to say the prospective candidate for permanent citizenship is impressed with Daytona as a live town with a bright future.

It would seem that Mr. Leroy should find an inviting field for such operations as he contemplates in this city. The engines he proposes to build and the special machinery he would turn out are in great and increasing demand. The crude material could be brought here far cheaper than the finished product and as labor is abundant and so many things conspire to render the project feasible Mr. Leroy may well drive a peg and begin operations. Daytona welcomes all legitimate enterprises looking toward the development of the town and East Coast. The Leroy enterprise comes clearly within the scope.

Our worthy city marshal, John Myers, is in possession of some very fine card photos of himself, in uniform, made by Dr. George Miller of West Magnolia avenue.

Daytona Advertisements

A Quartette of Advertisements Spreads the Sunshine of the Days—Weather Ideal.

That was a hole and half quantity of boys from the old Daytona that depended upon Daytona Thursday afternoon in their big touring car, a huge Stoddard-Dayton. They came through in great shape; averaging over a hundred miles per day hardly making long stops. Of course the boys had some pretty good speeding at intervals to cover the ground.

They report as having had a delightful trip through the beautiful Blue Grass region of Kentucky and among the rugged and picturesque Cumberland and Blue Ridge mountains of eastern Kentucky and Tennessee, made more so by the pleasant weather encountered. The trip was made in easy stages, as the members of the party are out for pleasure and recreation.

The roads were found in fairly good condition, which made going comparatively easy until the mud of Georgia and Florida was reached.

The party was composed of John W. Aull, R. G. Craighead, Wm. J. Aull and Chas. E. Hamsfow, all of Daytona. Their objective point was Daytona and they did a most clever piece of advertising on the 1000 mile stretch between the Ohio-Florida towns. A huge canvas suspended from the rear of the big car held in box-car letters this inscription: From Dayton, O., to Daytona, Fla. They also had a big flag which they held aloft in passing through the towns and cities.

Their itinerary brought them through Cincinnati, Lexington, L. A. ville, Nashville, Chattanooga, Atlanta, Macon, Savannah, Lake City, Jacksonville, St. Augustine to Daytona. They made a stop at Savannah and took in the races.

The only mishap which delayed the big machine was a broken shaft at Lake Park, Ga., it being necessary to wire to Dayton for a new one. In the meantime the members of the party managed to pass the time very pleasantly shooting quail and angling for the fluky tribe, the several days they were delayed.

They found the road for the entire distance in pretty good shape and suffered no inconvenience of consequence. The only time they felt that they were "up against it" was coming through old Kentucky. There one day they ran over and killed one mule, four dogs, six chickens, punctured their tires and broke a spring. It might be added that the Ohioans—they don't own to this however—broke several world's records in fleeing from pursuing night riders, in dodging the guns of the feudists and in side-stepping the stones and clubs of the rural cornercrackers.

The pilgrims made a brief stop at Oliver's garage on Orange avenue and then made a finishing twelve mile dash for Capt. Ellison's Ponce Park retreat where they do a turn for the next few weeks with the fluky tribe.

They gave Daytona a big send-off all the way down and hundreds asked them about the immaculate city on the Halifax which they are free to confess is in a class all by itself at a beauty show.

ARE LAUNCHING INTO A LARGER TRUCKING

The Misses Johnson Have a Big Force of Men Preparing Their Grounds.

Messrs. J. Howard and Claude R. Johnson, former proprietors of the Grand Atlantic and now located in the Seelye cottage on Orange avenue, have secured the Inhaber Brubacher place on Second avenue and have a force of men preparing the ground for vegetables, of which they will plant at least four acres including early and late lettuce, celery and peppers. There are two good artesian wells on the place and the land is being thrown into twenty-five foot beds and put in fine condition.

Messrs. Johnson have as forman G. W. Smith, a practical trucker, assisted by Jasper Brown, who has had years of experience here, and they will spare no effort or expense to make their farm both a financial success and a model in appearance.

The Equinox Storm Fable.
The United States weather bureau has denied that the coming of the equinox brings with it a storm. The belief, it says, that the old fashioned people put in this theory is all misplaced. Any big storm that happens to occur within a week or two of the time the sun is crossing the line, say the weather men, is dignified by the name of "equinoctial" storm," when, as a matter of fact, the storm is generally some atmospheric disturbance every week or two, and those that occur about the time of the equinox are just taking their turn and are not the result of the crossing of the sun.

WHEN BATHS WERE RARE.

The Time When a Dandy Washed His Face Nearly Every Day.

It will come as a shock to some readers to learn that one of the most serious occupations of a fifteenth century wife was to protect her husband from fleas!

Taking into consideration, however, the horror with which the people of those days regarded cold water and clean clothes, it is not surprising to learn that the question of exterminating these insects made life a burden.

Cleanliness was not only looked upon as a dangerous custom, but a positive sin. The reason alone was as serious as of any importance, so that the neglect of the body became so much a virtue that a bath was only allowed in cases of illness. At any rate, water had no place in the toilet of the grand monarch. His valet after pouring a flask containing spirits of wine over the hands of his majesty passed a comb through his hair, thus completing his toilet for the day.

In the seventeenth century, however, cleanliness was carried to such an extent that an English dandy was expected to wash his face "nearly every day." So rapidly did the custom spread that it was necessary to issue a solemn warning that the practice of using water for this purpose "injures the eyesight, engenders toothache and catarrh, renders the complexion colorless and makes the skin susceptible to cold in the winter and heat in the summer."

Popular in the eighteenth century in France than in England, this in spite of the fact that water was forbidden in the former country.

A lost art, according to M. Franklin in "La Civilté du XIII. au XIX. Siècle," is that of blowing one's nose. Today it is a more or less perfunctory necessity, but in the seventeenth century it was an accomplishment. One person imitated the blast of a trumpet, another the swearing of a cat. Possibly snuff taking, which was the fashionable habit of that day, had something to do with its accomplishments, perfection in which consisted in making "neither too much nor too little noise."

Another noteworthy fact on the etiquette of those days is that nobody ever knocked at the door. The correct thing was to scratch softly with the nail of the finger, which the dandelion of the day kept extremely long. Etiquette was so right, in fact, that it is said that the Duchesse de Montpensier spent a quarter of her life in mental torture as to whether different individuals admitted to her presence were entitled to sit on chairs with backs or only on stools.

A Fine Pair.

The Garden of Eden. The passage in Genesis in which the location of the garden of Eden seems to be indicated has long been a bone of contention among theologians and Bible students generally. The discussion of the subject has been as ingenious as it has been fruitless. The garden has been located all over Asia. The Biblical account would seem to place Eden in the old Mesopotamia, the region of the "great rivers," the Euphrates and Tigris.—New York American Tennyson's Terror.

There are many stories of Tennyson in the Duke of Argyll's book, "Familiar Faces of Great Britain," and one of the most characteristic relates to the time when the marriage of his grace, the Marquis of Lorne, and Princess Louise was in the air. One day Tennyson had a number of guests at luncheon, among whom was the Marquis of Lorne. In the course of talk the marquis told Tennyson, then poet laureate, that the queen liked his new volume.

"I am glad to hear it," Tennyson said in his sonorous, slow, musical bass voice. "I have given a good account of her in that volume, but the newspapers don't like my rhymes—they are bad. I live in terror," he continued, "of any of the queen's family marrying and of bearing from her the she hopes I will write something. I have no news of that kind yet, but I live in terror of it."

This with a solemnly airy wink.

The oldest known letter written on black edged note paper as a sign of mourning appears to be one dated Jan. 5, 1683. In Addison's comedy of "The Drummer," 1715, reference is made to the fashion in the words, "My lady's mourning paper that is blacked at the edges." A few years later Allan Ramsay, who died in 1786, speaks in one of his poems of "the sable bordered sheet" as a messenger of sorrow. Mann, writing from Italy to Horace Walpole in 1745, says that it was universally used in Florence at that time. The superior elegance of this Italian note paper, with its narrow margin of black, explains its ready acceptance in this country, where it superseded the quarto sheet with a black border sometimes a quarter of an inch wide. In this way it probably gave an impetus to the fashion. But it is a mistake to suppose, as some have done, that the fashion was introduced from Italy.

Caught Alive.
A New Yorker, a big game hunter of many years' experience, was lion shooting in Uganda. He had excellent luck. Nearly every day he posed in a complacent attitude beside a freshly killed lion, and his photographer snapped him for the magazine.

One afternoon the photographer, who was taking a nap in the hut, was awakened by a loud noise. He rose and looked out. Sprinting toward him from the jungle, hat gone and coat tails flying, came his chief, and, with terrible roars and growls, a huge lion bounded at his heels.

The photographer gazed spellbound at the strange and exciting picture. His chief, perceiving him, shouted: "Quick, quick! Open the door, George! I'm bringing him home alive!"—Washington Star.

Spelling a Tragedy.
"If you don't marry me," he said desperately, "I shall kill myself."
"And write a note telling all about it?" queried the maid.
"Yes."
"And hold my photograph in your other hand?"
"I had thought about it."
"Well, just wait a minute," she said. "and I'll borrow pa's pistol for you. My, but won't it be romantic?"
But he faded.

Assume in adversity a countenance of prosperity and in prosperity moderate thy temper.—Livy.

The ring, said Billy in a tremulous voice—"that was the hardest part of it. It went with the arm."
"Poor fellow!"
Billy forced out a couple of tears.
"Do you know, Billy, dear," said the girl encouragingly, "that there is a good spirit which takes care of us lovers."
"No," said Billy, "I never heard of it."
"There is. And when that horrid cannon ball took off your poor arm the good spirit caught the ring, pulled it off the poor dead finger and brought it to me."
"What do you mean?" exclaimed Billy, alarmed.
"I mean what I say. This lover's friend, dying on the wings of the wind, crossed the gulf of Mexico and, moving northward, one night when I was asleep slipped the ring on my own finger. There I found it when I awoke."
McGee started.
"Jack, you muffin, what are you giving me?"
"The ring."
She held up her hand, and there on the forefinger was the signet.
"Well, I'll be—"
There was confusion worse confounded in McGee's brain. For a few moments a sort of mental paralysis kept him from forming any opinion as to how the ring got into his girl's possession. When an idea finally came it came all of a sudden.

WILMANS OPERA HOUSE
SEABREEZE
Having taken over the management of Wilmans Opera House the undersigned begs to announce that no efforts will be spared to engage the best talent obtainable. The aim is to give only high class entertainments at popular prices. In return I invite the co-operation of the citizens of Daytona, Daytona Beach, Seabreeze and all on both sides of the river, to support my efforts by a liberal patronage when plays are presented. It will give me pleasure to add new scenery and stage effects as rapidly as returns will warrant and make the theatre the pride of the neighborhood.

A NEGRO CAUGHT IN RUNAWAY.
Gets Pretty Badly Used Up And Is Carried To a Physician for Repairs.
RACE BEGAN ON RIDGEWOOD AVE.
A negro driver for J. L. Pattillo's Port Orange grocery store had a close call for his life about noon Friday by being mixed up in a runaway. It is not known what started the race but it is thought the unhitching of one end of the trace is responsible for the mishap. The horse made a wild dash up Ridgewood and out Cottage avenue, leaving the wagon, driver and most of the harness behind.
It was caught on Cottage avenue by Wm. Fox, of the Rix livery. The negro was picked up and given medical attention, and is not thought to be seriously hurt.
